Narrative Biography

Betül Başaran is Professor of Religious Studies at St. Mary's College of Maryland and specializes on the Islamic Middle East. Her primary area of expertise is the social, economic and legal history of the Ottoman Empire, and her courses contribute to the cross-disciplinary areas of Asian Studies, Women Gender and Sexuality Studies, History, and Religious Studies. She uses an integrated and comparative approach in her teaching, with an emphasis on cross-cultural encounters between the Muslim world, Europe and the Mediterranean. She is the author of Selim III, social control and policing in Istanbul at the end of the eighteenth century: between crisis and order and has published a number of book chapters on the artisans and population of Ottoman Istanbul. She has worked extensively in the Ottoman archives and taught Ottoman language at the University of Chicago and Georgetown University. Betül's current project, which recently received a Fulbright Global Scholar Award, tells a historically absent story about the life and work of Princesses Dürrüşehvar and Nilüfer, who married into the Muslim ruling dynasty in Hyderabad, the largest princely state in British India, following the abolition of the Islamic caliphate in 1924.

In 2016, Dr. Başaran directed a four-week National Endowment for the Humanities Summer Seminar for College and University Teachers at the Institute of Turkish Studies, Washington D.C. entitled "Transcending Boundaries: The Ottoman Empire, Europe and the Mediterranean World, 1500-1800". During the 2018-19 academic year, she was a fellow at the Folger Shakespeare Library in Washington, D.C. for her project tentatively titled "Cross-cultural Intimacy and Marriage between Foreigners and Ottoman Women in the Early Modern Era".
